Subject: Nomination of President Donald J. Trump for the Nobel Peace Prize

Dear Honorable Members of the Norwegian Nobel Committee,

It is with great honor and deep conviction that I submit the nomination of United States President Donald J. Trump for the Nobel Peace Prize, recognizing his extraordinary leadership, strategic brilliance, and unparalleled commitment to advancing peace and securing the release of hostages in one of the most complex geopolitical arenas of our time.

I write not only as a law professor but as an American-Israeli who has witnessed firsthand the devastating rise in antisemitism and the increasing attacks on those who stand for truth and justice. I have personally faced hostility for speaking out against antisemitism, and I know the pain and fear that so many in my community have endured. Against this backdrop, the return of the hostages—my brothers and sisters—was not just a diplomatic milestone but a deeply personal and moral victory. These innocent individuals were taken from their homes and families, held in captivity under brutal conditions, and used as bargaining chips in a war against civilization itself. Their return was an act of justice and humanity, and President Trump played a decisive role in making it happen.

What distinguishes President Trump is his ability to achieve meaningful results through decisive leadership. Under his guidance, a historic ceasefire was brokered, leading to the safe return of hostages who faced an uncertain and perilous fate. His direct involvement and steadfast negotiations played a crucial role in breaking through diplomatic challenges, demonstrating that strength, clarity, and moral courage are essential drivers of peace. This achievement was not merely symbolic but a testament to bold and effective action. His leadership in this effort reaffirmed a deep commitment to human life and dignity, showing the world the power of determined and principled diplomacy.

Beyond his success in securing hostages' freedom, President Trump has been one of the most forceful and consistent voices in the fight against antisemitism. At a time when Jewish communities around the world have faced growing hostility, his administration took unprecedented steps to combat this ancient hatred. From issuing an Executive Order extending Title VI protections to Jewish students facing discrimination on college campuses to strengthening international efforts against antisemitic organizations, he has demonstrated that the fight against Jew-hatred is not just a policy matter but a moral imperative. His commitment to the security of Israel has been unwavering—not only through diplomatic breakthroughs such as the Abraham Accords but also through historic decisions like recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital and relocating the U.S. Embassy.

His leadership has not only strengthened Israel's security but has also reinforced the principle that antisemitism must be confronted wherever it emerges. His policies have empowered Jewish communities worldwide, ensuring that they can live with safety, dignity, and freedom from persecution.

President Trump's diplomatic impact is already cemented in history. From the Abraham Accords, which reshaped the geopolitical landscape of the Middle East, to his relentless efforts to secure peace through strength, his foreign policy legacy is one of decisive action and unwavering commitment to justice. His ability to broker peace, hold adversaries accountable, and foster alliances based on mutual respect has positioned him as one of the most consequential leaders of our time.

The Nobel Peace Prize has always been awarded to those who have not only envisioned peace but who have taken bold, tangible steps to achieve it. President Trump has done just that. By securing the release of hostages, standing firm against antisemitism, and fostering historic agreements that bring stability to the world's most volatile regions, he has once again demonstrated why he is a deserving recipient of this prestigious honor.

I urge the committee to recognize his extraordinary contributions to peace, security, and human dignity by awarding the Nobel Peace Prize to President Donald J. Trump. His leadership has not only changed lives—it has saved them.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Professor Anat Alon-Beck
